

Open Tenure-track Position in Supply Chain Management

The Wilbur O. and Ann Powers College of Business at Clemson University has an exciting career opportunity for an associate or full professor within the Department of Management. The position will begin Fall semester of 2024. The anticipated employment start date is August 15, 2024. We are seeking candidates who are committed to publishing high-quality research in top journals, providing leadership in Ph.D. programs, including teaching periodic Ph.D. courses and chairing Ph.D. student dissertations. The candidate should have excellent communication skills and be able to teach at a high-level consistent with The Wilbur O. and Ann Powers College of Business standards. An initial responsibility of this position will be to work with business leaders and current faculty to create a comprehensive Value Chain signature program. Salary and benefits are competitive.

Candidates must have an earned Ph.D. in operations management, supply chain management, or a closely related field. The academic rank (associate professor, or professor) and compensation will be based on candidate qualifications. Candidates should have an established record of excellence in research, such as publications in top journals that demonstrate methodological and supply chain management expertise. Preference will be given to those applicants whose research enhances and extends those of the existing faculty and leverages the benefits of being in a large interdisciplinary department. Demonstrated capability in incorporating SAP into SCM classes and working with business leaders to enhance the undergraduate classroom experience will be a plus.

The Department of Management is an academic unit within The Wilbur O. and Ann Powers College of Business at Clemson University.
